ENGL - ENGLISH POST BACCALAUREATE

ENGL 1010 English Composition I (3 Credit Hours)
Composition I is a three-credit college writing course to prepare students for the fundamental knowledge and skills of college-level expository writing and critical thinking. Areas of focus include idea presentation and organization, audience, point of view, voice and tone, paragraph and essay coherence, precision and word choice, and technology-mediated evaluation of grammar, mechanics, and originality. Students are introduced to strategies for rhetorical writing, writing-as-process and product, and thinking-as-writing. An introduction to argument structure and writing from sources culminates in an academic essay as a comprehensive course assignment.
Additional fees may exist.
Academic Level: Undergraduate

ENGL 1011 English Composition II (3 Credit Hours)
Composition II is a three-credit college research writing course to prepare students to use the conventions of academic research writing. Writing-as-process and practice strategies will be employed to culminate in the production of an academic research essay supported by well-synthesized, diverse, credible, and reliable secondary sources. Students will demonstrate use of technology to ensure appropriate paraphrase and summary of sources, originality, use of citation style, grammar and mechanics, and scholarly voice.
Additional fees may exist.
Academic Level: Undergraduate

ENGL 5030 American Literature after 1865: Topics Course (3 Credit Hours)
Academic Level: Undergraduate